

The role of Christian values in international relations to be considered by a Christmas Reading section

On January 23, 2015, a round table on 'Christian Values as Factor of International Relations Today' will be held in the conference-hall of the Ss Cyril and Methodius Institute of Post-Graduate Studies.

It is planned to consider the importance of traditional Christian reference points in inter-state relations. This discussion as part of the 23d International Christmas Readings is organized by the institute's Chair of External Church Relations.

The event will be attended by heads and staff of diplomatic missions accredited in Moscow and Russian experts.

The round table is coordinated by Mr. Miguel Palacio, DECR.

The round table will take place from 14:00 to 17:00.

Participation by invitation.

DECR Communication Service