

Parish of St. George in Cambodia has arranged online courses for studies of Orthodox doctrine

The Parish of Great Martyr George the Conqueror in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, has begun enrolling people to a group for studying the basics of Orthodox doctrine established with a blessing of Archimandrite Oleg Cherepanin, secretary of the Diocese of Thailand.

According to a report on the Facebook page of the Patriarchal Exarchate of South-East Asia, the first course will be taught by the rector of the Phnom Penh parish, Hieromonk Paisius (Ipate) to be joined later by other lecturers. The classes will be held on the ZOOM video platform each Tuesday.

The group is intended for English-speaking parishioners in the Diocese of Thailand, but it will be open for all those interested in Orthodoxy regardless of their confession.
